

You're a changemaker, giving your best every day to your family, community and colleagues. But something's missing. How aligned are you with your true purpose? And what is your true purpose anyway?

Is your emotional intelligence keeping pace with your leadership drive? When did you last stop and listen to your own wisdom? Are you fully awake?

THE ENNEAGRAM

The Enneagram has been used for decades and is taught at Stanford Business School and around the world as a tool for personal and professional development. With this tool, I nudge clients out of their comfort zone toward self-inquiry and truth-telling. Results ensue. It takes courage to look inside. But it's pure freedom to feel awake and living with integrity every day.

CLIENT RESULTS

- Clarity of patterns, purpose and passion
- Redefined collaboration process
- Regulated nervous system
- Integrated decision-making: head-heart-body
- Deeper understanding of your impact on others
- Best practices for giving and receiving feedback

BOOK A CALL

“After my financial advisory firm went through a merger, I was concerned about the blend of personality and leadership. Using the Enneagram, Margot helped us relate to one another with respect and understanding. This wisdom we gained helped us foster a successful partnership through the merger and beyond.”

- Barbara K., Principal

“Margot is at once fierce, insightful, warm and inviting. Under her skillful coaching, I acquired clear direction, and built an action plan for my professional development. Her blend of practical inquiry and spiritual context helped me address fears from the past and move forward into a new horizon of possibilities.”

- Kathleen R., Entrepreneur
